

Ordered to Leave Soon.

Eight men were yesterday arraigned before Judge Petherbridge, on the charge of vagrancy, and they were given a few hours in which to leave the city. The men were nicely clad and had papers to show that they were tinner^s seeking employment, having come from St. Louis and being en route to Omaha. Though not having much cash in their possession, they had watches, and did not bear the appearance of being regular tramps. They gave their names as: J. C. Kinney, W. N. Gustive, William Jackson, Thomas Charles, H. Williams, Frank McGowan, Charles Jacobs and August Elger.

Captain Langham, of the police force, did not like it that the men were locked up, and stated the officers should have refrained from arresting the men, as they could clearly show they were workmen looking for a job, and not professional tramps. The troupe, however, were found in a box car, and the officers felt in duty bound to run them in.
