

The past week was one of trepidation to many a boy and girl in the grammar schools who were not sure about reaching the goal of their ambition—a certificate to enter high school. And how numerous "anxious parents" awaited examination results and sympathized with those who "didn't pass," and rejoiced with others who came home as valiant heroes after a seven year mental conflict! By the way, when a certain principal announced the date of his seventh grade exercises, one of the girls said: "You'll have to wait another day. My mother can't have my new dress finished by that time." The date was accordingly changed, and ladies who have heard of the incident agree that it would be "just lovely" to have an obliging man like that about the house.	e V W A W E b s A a a T
