

TAKE PLENTY OF MONEY.

New Vegetables and Fruits Are on the Market, but They Are Expensive.

Those who visit the market today will find quite a variety of produce, but they will also find it expensive. Vegetables that belonged to the mid-summer season before fruit cars were invented are on sale and are temptingly displayed in the various fruit and vegetable stalls.

The first really good tomatoes from the south are now offered. The price for them is 25 cents a pound. Long green cucumbers are beginning to appear. They are considered a great treat at this time of the year and 25 cents each is their market value. Lettuce brings 5 cents a stalk, while cauliflower ranges from 5 cents to 15 cents a head. There are no radishes upon the market this week. Potatoes have dropped a few cents. Wholesale dealers ask from 75 cents to $1.00 per bushel. Retail prices are from 90 cents to $1.25 per bushel. Spanish onions are $2.00 per crate; turnips, 60 cents per bushel; cabbage, 4 cents per pound; cranberries, 15 cents per quart; greens, 5 cents a bunch; horseradish, 10 cents and 15 cents a bottle.

There is a good supply of choice apples on the market. The best are selling at $3.50 per barrel. Bananas are 10 and 15 cents a dozen, and oranges 15 to 40 cents a dozen. This is the time for pine apples and many fine ones are offered. The average price is 25 cents a head. But few grapes are on the market and they are from California. They bring 25 cents a pound.

A fair demand for turkeys keeps the price up to 15 cents a pound. Dressed chickens are 12 cents and geese 11 cents a pound.

Fish come mostly from the south now and the supply is fair. Most of the fish on the market at present come from the lower Mississippi and the gulf.
