

A number of persons are anxious to serve the city in the capacity of Mayor. In another column will be found the announcement of Mrs. Anna Potter, the wife of Col. Eli Potter, general agent of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company of Philadelphia, Pa. If Mrs. Potter should be elected she would undoubtedly inaugurate some very beneficial reforms. As women are entitled to vote and hold municipal offices they have a chance in the candidacy of Mrs. Potter to put one of their own number at the head of the city government.

On the 15th day of October the gamblers
